HAVE used Tongaline, and it did its work splendidly; have found it good in cases of flatulence, where constipation prevails, and these are numerous.

N. NEWELL SILL, M. D., Strawberry Point, Iowa.

In the answer to "A Subscriber" of Georgetown, in Wednesday's issue, we unintentionally omitted the names of Messrs. J. C. Owens and E. F. Metcalfe, who opposed Mr. W. W. Ball in the primary election in the race for County Clerk in 1878. We will also add that Mr. W. C. Sadler was Mr. Ball's opponent at the August election in 1878 as well as in 1879.

Not Guilty.

As was expected by all concerned, the jury in the case of Craig Tolliver returned a verdict yesterday of not guilty. The testimony was not sufficient to sustain the charge. The refusal of Dorschman, who is now in the penitentiary for participation in the robbery, to testify was what broke down the State's case from what they expected it would turn out. Tolliver was, of course, discharged, and left for home yesterday afternoon. [Cincinnati Enquirer, October 21st.]

The Silver Coinage.

The great question is as to what shall be done with the standard silver dollars, which are accumulating more rapidly than the public seems to have any use for them. It should be remembered by Congressmen and all others that each of these standard dollars will buy a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters, and that this price of iron tonics will right most wrongs of the physical system. Any good druggist will give you a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters for a standard silver dollar.

NOTWITHSTANDING the warnings of the deadly character of the toy pistol, some parties still allow their children to handle these innocent looking playthings. Occasionally one hears of the terrible result of allowing children to handle these weapons. Albert Edgar aged seven years was shot and killed by one of them in the hands of Willie Schenkler, at Cincinnati this week. Schenkler is only ten years of age. Of course, he "didn't think it was loaded." Edgar died in a short time from the wound. Schenkler was arrested and locked up on the charge of murder.

A Fatal Affray.

During a dance at the house of a man named Bennett, back of Sand Hill, Lewis County, last Friday night, a disturbance arose among several of the attendants. A number of parties was engaged in the affray, and when order was at last restored, it was found that George W. Darnall, a young man who resides near Sand Hill, had been severely cut in the arm and side. The wound was not considered dangerous, but blood-poisoning set in and Darnall died from his wounds Tuesday evening. It is not known positively who inflicted the wounds, but a young man of the neighborhood, who was engaged in the affray, is suspected of being the guilty party. No arrests, however, have been made. Most of the parties were considerably under the influence of liquor at the time the fight occurred.

The Brilliant Exploits of Lieut. Allen In His Explorations of Alaska.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Owingsville, Ky., October 19.—Lieutenant Henry Allen, whose recent daring adventures in Alaska have suddenly made him famous, is a native of this place, and his people are justly proud of his grand achievement. Lieutenant Allen was always marked for greatness by those who know him best. He graduated with honors at West Point, and, unlike many who receive the beneficence of the Government, he chose the army for his profession and was assigned to duty in the far North-west. General Nelson A. Miles, in writing of young Allen's wonderful journey through the regions of the far North, says that, in his opinion, it excelled all explorations on the American Continent since Lewis and Clark, and the world's record since Livingstone. Allen left Sitka last January and journeyed to the mouth of Copper River, which he followed till he reached the great Alaska range of mountains. These he crossed on snow-shoes, in itself a great accomplishment. For eight hundred miles he followed the Tinak River, until it emptied into the Takon, a distance of five hundred miles more. The exploration of the Tinak and Takon Rivers has been the ambition of explorers long before Alaska came into possession of the United States, but the Russians failed every time they attempted it. Since then several explorations by American officers have ended in failure, until among army officers the feat came to be considered impossible.

The Baptist Centennial at Washington. WASHINGTON, KY., Oct. 21, 1885.

Editor BULLETIN: These bright October days have witnessed in this old village a celebration by the Baptists of the centennial of the founding of their church here. Saturday and Sunday, October 18th and 19th, were the days appointed for the observance, and there came together a goodly crowd to take part in the celebration. Just one hundred and sixteen years ago Squire Boone, a brother of that hardy pioneer, Daniel Boone, came to Kentucky. He was a kind of preacher, a Baptist, and the first of that denomination to set foot on Kentucky soil. He is said to have united in marriage the first white couple ever married in Kentucky. About this time Simon Kenton, the grand old pioneer, had established a fort but a half mile or so north of here, near where there was a great spring of water. The early settlers always hunted out a place where water was plenty in locating a fort. The place is yet known as "Kenton farm," and is a very beautiful and fertile one.

George Wood was the first Baptist preacher to locate in this part of what was then no more than a howling wilderness. He gave the name of Washington to the place in honor of the "Father of his Country," and this is said to be the very first place named for him. The first church building was of very ancient appearance, both as to exterior and interior, and was erected by this same George Wood. It gave way to the present structure a few years since. About the oldest grave in the burial ground around the church is said to be that of an Indian. The name on the stone is Collier, and date of his death 1780. The "reminiscences" brought out and letters read from old members, formed a very interesting feature of the occasion. Two immense tables loaded with everything good to eat both days, cut no small figure in the general jubilee, and the celebration was one long to be remembered by all who attended. X.
